LunaJets Is Now Expecting a Strong Summer 2021

Last September we had a bleak view on the state of the charter market, it turned out to be too pessimistic - Meaculpa.

« We concluded 2020 with the best performance in our 14-year history, mainly fuelled by an all-time high fourth quarter. Overall, the group experienced a record year with revenues up over 30%, thus, ratifying our ability to gain market share and seize opportunities in these challenging times » noted Alain Leboursier, Managing Director.

Regarding our private jet charter segment, LunaJets experienced another record start for 2021; this activity is 20% above pre-Covid19 levels. It is by far our best start of a year and particularly unexpected considering the volatility in the market as both our regular business and private clients have dramatically reduced their travel activity.

We have had a record number of new clients and increased demand for longer trips and on larger aircraft. LunaJets' target is to reach the 1'000 new clients milestone this year fuelled by a global expansion strategy with new offices in Paris, London and Monaco seamlessly aligned with continued investment in technology and marketing.

In April alone, our business activity has doubled compared to April 2019, we generated over 600 flight movements including long haul flights in Asia, Africa and the Indian ocean where clients struggle to find commercial solutions alas turn to us.

Clients are also benefiting from our aggressive pricing due to our business volume with the world-wide leading jet operators.

«As we see our existing clients starting to fly again and new clients taking off, we are therefore expecting a very strong summer 2021. We also foresee gains in market share as more clients grasp the importance of our market impartiality and independent advice when booking a private jet» concluded Alain Leboursier, LunaJet's Managing director.

The LunaJets value proposition and flexible offering appear to be the perfect answer to the current global travel crisis.
